Symposium: Meanings of Family in the Transition from Care to Adulthood

21 November 2025

Online

Scientific Programme

This symposium brings together international scholars to explore the meanings and roles of “family” in the lives of care-experienced young people. Through presentations from diverse research contexts the event examines how care-experienced young people negotiate family relationships during the transition to adulthood. The program highlights ambivalences, challenges, and resources connected to family, and provides space for critical academic exchange on how family is defined, experienced, and supported across different cultural and institutional settings.
